Anthony Bumhira and Virginia Chihota

Hurukuro

James Cohan is pleased to present Hurukuro, a two-person exhibition curated by Augusto Arbizo, featuring the work of Anthony Bumhira and Virginia Chihota, on view from March 1 through April 5, 2025, at the gallery's 52 Walker Street location. This marks the first gallery exhibition in New York for both artists. James Cohan will host an exhibition walkthrough with Virginia Chihota and Augusto Arbizo on Saturday, March 1, 2025 at 3:30 PM, followed by an opening reception from 4-6 PM.

Hurukuro (the Shona word for “conversation”) brings together the work of Anthony Bumhira and Virginia Chihota to establish a personal and quietly potent dialogue. Bumhira and Chihota reflect on themes of intimacy, domesticity and the body, using the language of the everyday to pose broader existential questions. Both artists draw from their biographies, using their upbringing, family, religion, and community as foundational lenses to explore the intersections of personal and collective histories.

Hurukuro showcases large-scale, wall-based works that incorporate a variety of materials including fabric, thread, blankets, and paper doilies in Bumhira's work; and printing inks, acrylic paint, and canvas in Chihota's paintings. During the artists' time at the National Gallery School at the National Gallery of Zimbabwe, the curriculum emphasized commercial art techniques and ideas, such as multiples of genre pictures of street life and market scenes. These technical and formal ideas—which includes printmaking processes and the serial use of forms—would become instrumental in the early development of both artists. Bumhira and Chihota's practices incorporate these core precepts as a point of departure to materially and compositionally innovative ends.

Through a mix of traditional and handmade strategies —such as serigraphy (silkscreen printing), stamping, cut-paper, and doily stitching—Bumhira and Chihota experiment with layered compositions that bring the figure to the forefront. For Bumhira, the use of doilies and stitching is a tender acknowledgment of a craft used by his mother for border trade; and his utilization of blankets touches on their use for comfort and shelter. In Chihota's practice, the use of silkscreen allows her to repeat specific motifs, such as windows, chairs, torsos - and to examine their different meanings. Repetition becomes a form of prayer, and recurring motifs allow her to remember dreams, question reality, and mine their expressive potential.

For both artists, figures and symbols emerge within vibrant and graphic fields, creating works with complex visual and emotional resonances. Weaving together symbolic representations of Zimbabwean folklore, motherhood, faith, and kinship, Bumhira and Chihota posit distinctive modes of content-rich abstraction.

About the Artists

Anthony Bumhira (b. 1985, Chitungwiza, Zimbabwe; d. 2020) graduated in Fine Arts from the National Art Gallery Workshop School in Harare, Zimbabwe, in 2008. In his short life, Bumhira was the subject of two solo exhibitions at the National Gallery of Zimbabwe: Modern View, which opened upon his graduation at the age of 23, and a posthumous survey exhibition presented in 2025. His work has been featured in exhibitions at Zeitz MOCAA, Cape Town, South Africa; Gabbaron Foundation, New York, and Lucie Chang Fine Arts, Hong Kong. Bumhira's work is included in the permanent collections of Zeitz MOCAA and the Gabbaron Foundation.
